Seminar Details

The presentation will provide the listener with insight into the successful techniques that are now being utilised in the below ground waterproofing industry including:

An in depth technical introduction to designing a below ground waterproofing system conforming to BS8102 in order to create an area that is fit for purpose.

To demonstrate how in both retrofit and new build scenarios, modern technology has produced new systems of dealing with leaking/damp structures.

To show how 'Type C' method of construction, incorporating a drained cavity, helps the specifier to comply with their responsibilities regarding design criteria. This is in line with current legislation, codes of practice and by using one of our approved contractors, full design responsibility can be delegated.
